

Referata Troubles?

As most Wiki Nations know, MicroWiki is moving from our website, Wikia. Unfortunately, our first choice, ShoutWiki, turned out to be very temperamental. Recently, popular MicroWiki Editor Aldrich Lucas proposed that we switch to the website Referata. Referata looked good, and had an easy importing system. However, problems soon arose. Referata has only 100 MB of file storage available. 200 MB of files are currently in use at the current site. Referata has crashed several times, sometimes displaying a white screen, other times pages of random code.

What should happen because of these troubles? So far no community decision has been made. However, Peter Bralesford of Egtavia has proposed that the wiki be moved to a privately hosted website, and that a committee of nations will pay for the site.

Secundomian Forums are Online

President Parker I of Secundomia has now announced that the Secundomian Forums have been revamped and are in the best shape ever. He is currently taking on the daunting task of transferring the community to the Forums. The forums were actually put online in Spring 2010, however, the President could not garner enough interest in the forums, and no-one registered. However, three secundomians have already registered, and the forum structure has been revised, making the forum look better than ever. If you are a Secundomian, and you haven't registered, please visit the forums at <http://secundomia.forumsmotion.com>.

Nemkhavia to leave the FRA1

Earlier today Governor Mark Meehan of Nemkhavia announced that the protectorate would once again become an independent nation.

This isn't the first time Nemkhavia has fluctuated from independent to dependent and back again. Nemkhavia started as an independent nation in 2009. Its claims of citizens and activity are now known to be fake, but they were, and still are, one of the most respected nations in the community. Nemkhavia felt itself growing close to the controversial nation of Pristinia, and they formed the Socialist Union of Nemkhavia and Pristinia. However, the Union quickly broke apart and Nemkhavia became independent.

Recently, after admitting his citizen claims were false, Mr. Meehan announced his desire to join another nation in the community. He decided to make Nemkhavia a protectorate of A1. And now it has become independent again. We wish Nemkhavia well in its journey on the wiki, and we hope to see exciting times ahead.
